

Communities working together with law enforcement

When the National Sheriff's Association started the Neighborhood Watch Program in 1972, they understood that a crime watch program is a great way to bring residents and law enforcement together to decrease crime and make a community safer.

The program counts on communities to organize themselves and work with law enforcement to keep their eyes and ears open at all times. Close-knit communities usually report less break-ins, thefts and overall crimes when proper neighborhood crime watch programs are in place.

A crime watch program can be a collaboration between more than just residents and law enforcement. Businesses often play a vital role in the strength and safety of their communities, and a business crime watch program is a great way for companies to continue to give back to the communities they serve.

Vector Security can help your community launch Neighborhood Crime Watch and Business Crime Watch programs.

Video Cameras Deter Break-ins

According to research conducted with incarcerated burglars, many indicated that knowing a community has a Neighborhood Crime Watch program was a powerful deterrent to committing a crime. The most effective deterrent to home burglaries, however, according to these incarcerated burglars, was the presence of video surveillance and cameras.

At Vector Security we'll design and install a video surveillance solution to fit your lifestyle and budget.

With video cameras in your home, you can:

- View live video or recorded clips from your computer, smartphone or tablet. Even watch video from multiple cameras simultaneously.
- Use your computer, smartphone or tablet to remotely control your cameras. Turn them on and off and adjust views.
- Enable motion-triggered settings and receive email or text message alerts when video is recorded so you can see visitors knocking on your door. If anything is amiss, you'll know right away.
- Access archived clips on a secure site to prevent tampering or accidental deletion so you can refer back at any time.
